WILLIAM LACY CLAY
FIRST DISTRICT, MISSOURI

Proclamation

*Recognizing Blossom Wood Day School
January 30, 2009*

Whereas, the students of Blossom Wood Day School have been diligently studying federal government processes in their social studies classes. Their exceptional efforts are culminating in the celebration of a very special ball they are holding today in recognition of the historic Inauguration of President Barack Obama; and

Whereas, during this special evening, the students will present the works they have composed, practiced, and learned as a celebration of President Obama's promise for the future and their personal visions of what this grand event means to them; and

Whereas, the dedicated staff and the Parents Advisory Council of Blossom Wood Day School are to be highly commended for the important knowledge that they have imparted to our young people and also for their ongoing efforts to encourage them to develop their talents and abilities. The wonderful educational opportunities and support provided to these students will enable them to truly appreciate the great significance of the events now taking place and will, in addition, help equip them with the skills needed for them to become productive, involved, and responsible citizens in our community;

Now, Therefore, I, Congressman Wm. Lacy Clay, designate January 30, 2009, as "Blossom Wood Day School" in the First Congressional District of Missouri. I urge all citizens to applaud the students, staff, and the Parents Advisory Council for their tremendous work and for their celebration of a most historic day.

William Lacy Clay
